Base Briefs

AFSPC VISITS TEAM V

The Secretary of the Air Force and Chief of Staff of the Air Force have directed all major commands to conduct an assessment of their sexual assault response program's status. As part of the visit, the Air Force Space Command sexual assault assessment team will hold open conference periods today from 8 to 10 a.m. at Chapel 1.

COMMANDER'S CALL

The 30th Mission Support Group holds two commander's calls Thursday in the base theater at 7 a.m. for the 30th SFS and 30th LRS and 2:30 p.m. for 30th CES, 30th CONS, 30th MSS and 30th SVS. For more information, call 606-8700.

CHANGE OF COMMAND

The 30th Logistics Readiness Squadron will have a change of command ceremony at 3 p.m. Monday at the Pacific Coast Club. Lt. Col. Scott Van Ness will relinquish command to Lt. Col. Jeffrey Kersten. Call 606-9069 for details.

GC KICKOFF

The Guardian Challenge kickoff begins at 3:30 p.m. today at the Pacific Coast Club.

GATE PROCEDURES

Air Force officials have implemented new base gate procedures. The standardized entry control procedures include establishing new baseline force protection, 100 percent identification and verification of all vehicle operators and pedestrians entering the base and daily random vehicle searches above and beyond base entry point check. Although these procedures may cause some delays during implementation they have been established to improve security Air Force-wide.

NO MORE FORMFLOW

Users of the FormFlow program will no longer be able to download forms they frequently use as of April 1. Those users are highly recommended to download the forms they often use and place them on their own personal computers before that date as well as saving the legacy data together as a package to ensure retrieval. For more information regarding this matter, call Charles Whitson at DSN 692-6802 or 692-3157.

Team V family gets fresh look

BY STAFF SGT. REBECCA DANET
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

■ Designer and architect Barry Wood of The Learning Channel's home decorating show, Trading Spaces, visited Vandenberg last week on a whirlwind trip to redecorate one NCO's living and dining rooms in Vandenberg's military family housing.

Base officials selected Staff Sgt. Simon Posey, 30th Security Forces Squadron, to participate in the redesign as part of an article in USAA Magazine aimed at giving military families pointers and tips on decorating their transient military homes. USAA provides banking and insurance services to military members and their families along with advice and tips through its monthly magazine.

With only four months on station, Sergeant Posey was also selected for a six-month deployment in Germany. Deploying only five days before his home's transformation was set to take place, Sergeant Posey left the job in the hands of his wife Jennifer, 11-year-old daughter, Natalie, 7-year-old daughter, Courtney and 2-year-old son, Logan. The budget for the project was $1,000 and since Sergeant Posey was gone, his fellow security forces members stepped

Spouses' Club hosts charity auction

BY AIRMAN JUANIKA GLOVER
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

■ The Vandenberg Spouses' Club is set to host their annual charity auction Saturday to raise money for base scholarships and help support other local organizations.

"The Charity Auction is our way of giving back to the community, said Troi Reppart Vandenberg Spouses Club Welfare Fundraising Chairman. Last year's auction was extremely successful which enabled the Spouses' Club to contribute more than ever to Team Vandenberg and the Lompoc community."

The VSC donates money to support local projects such as G.I. Java, Cookie Express, Cabrillo High School Madrigals, Operation Kid's Christmas, newcomers' orientation's and the youth center's Breakfast with Santa. The group also supports local and national organizations like Vandenberg's Global Hearts, Retiree Appreciation Day, Heart Link, Paralyzed Vets, Air Force Village Foundation, Air Force Enlisted Foundation, Fisher House, Vandenberg Food Pantry, and Domestic Violence Solutions for Santa Barbara County.

In addition to supporting organizations and events, the VSC awarded $15,000 in scholarships to local college-bound students and spouses. The group also awards athletic scholarships for children wishing to participate in Youth Center sports programs, Mrs. Reppart said.

Casey Lepke, a military spouse and Chapman University student who's scheduled to graduate in May, benefited directly from the auction's funds when she was awarded a $1,000 scholarship.

"Because the universities on base are private, they can be rather expensive, and without scholarships, it would be hard to pay for them," Mrs. Lepke said. "I was so happy when I found out that I had won the scholarship. It has really helped me toward completing my degree."

Mrs. Lepke heard about the scholarship program while she was at a Global Hearts event. She will be getting her degree in social science and hopes to become a teacher one day. Applications for Vandenberg Spouses' Club College Scholarships are being accepted through March 28, Mrs. Reppart said. Graduating seniors in the class of 2004, who are dependents of active-duty, retired or deceased military members are eligible to apply.

Air Force begins full-scale sexual assault assessment

BY MASTER SGT. SCOTT ELLIOTT
Air Force Print News

■ Allegations of sexual misconduct at the Air Force Academy and Sheppard AFB, Texas, have prompted the Air Staff to direct an Air Force-wide review of its policies, procedures and victim programs.

Officials at each Air Force major command have formed sexual-assault integrated-process teams to survey and assess the activities at each of their bases. A Team from Air Force Space Command arrived here Wednesday. Former 30th Space Wing Commander Robert M. Worley II is the AFSPC Team Chief.

"The (officials) put their teams together to go out and assess each of their bases and look at procedures to ensure we have the right mechanisms and policies in place," said Maj. Gen. John Spiegel, Director of Personnel Policy at the Pentagon.

Deployed locations will also be surveyed. "We are concerned about the medical support that's available ... to ensure that victims are taken care of in a timely and caring manner," the general said.

The teams have until April 9 to turn in their findings, General Spiegel said. Those results will then be compiled into a "game plan" for presentation to the Air Force's four-star generals at the Corona conference in May.

"Sexual assault is a crime. It also breaks down teamwork, unit cohesion and morale," General Spiegel said. "All of that (affects) our readiness, and that's why we find this such a troublesome issue."

The Air Force is not immune to sexual assault because it is reflective of the American society where this too is a problem, the general said.

General Spiegel said the 18 to 25 age group is the one most susceptible to sexual assault, but Air Force training helps offset that trend.

"Our Air Force is probably the safest spot (for them)," he said. "We take America's society, and all the diversity it brings, and we mold and shape these new recruits in basic military training."

"The result of that, the standards we want and expect for our Air Force men and women, is one that is higher than what is in the civil sector," General Spiegel said. "That standard we shouldn't apologize for. That's why we need to work this problem very diligently."

"This isn't perfect; we recognize that," General Spiegel said. "At the end of the day, when we really dedicate ourselves to it, like any Air Force problem, we can fix it; we just have to work at it."

AF officials crack down on per diem rate rules

By MR. MASON ROSE
30th Comptroller Squadron

■ Audits show that Air Force personnel are not using the proportional per diem rate properly on temporary-duty assignments.

In October 1996, a change in the Joint Federal Travel Regulation and the Joint Travel Regulation introduced the PPD rate to determine meal reimbursement for TDY travelers.

TDY travelers are required to dine at on-base establishments unless the mission dictates otherwise. However, the recent audit states that Air Force officials are not always doing so. After reading the results of the audit, General Lance Lord, Air Force Space Command commander, wrote, “Although we have made great progress in implementing the provisions pertaining to the correct use of per diem rates for temporary duty travel, a recent audit showed we have become lax in applying these rules.”

During the audit Air Force officials found that installations reviewed were inconsistently applying the per diem rates, Commanders should direct the use of Air Force dining facilities when active duty personnel are TDY to a military installation and when the mission permits, Gen. Lord said.

There are always a few exceptions to these regulations outlined above and they are to be determined by each organization’s orders approving official.

An AO is appointed by each organization’s commander to determine which per diem rate applies to the traveler prior to the commencement of travel. If the traveler finds that meal availability has changed, or the mission does not allow consuming meals in the dining hall as directed by the AO, the AO may always make changes to the orders to reimburse the traveler upon return. If circumstances dictate, the AO can increase the per diem to the higher rate, but they cannot decrease it. The AO, prior to approving any TDY orders, should visit the Per Diem Committee’s website (<http://www.dtic.mil/perdiem>) to view the latest information on the availability of facilities at each TDY location.

and spouses of active-duty or retired military members are also eligible. Applications are available through high school counselors, the base thrift shop, the education office and all first sergeants.

“Last year’s auction raised approximately $24,000 for the spouses club,” Mrs. Reppart said.

“The theme for this year’s auction is, Saddle Up for the VSC Annual Charity Auction.

The event is scheduled for 6 p.m. at the Pacific Coast Club and is open to everyone. Reservations are taken through the start of the event. Admission fee is $3, which includes appetizers and a bid paddle with a bid number.

Local auctioneer Clyde George will lead participants through three events – the live, silent and dessert auctions.

Mrs. Reppart said during the live auction, an item is displayed and participants are able to make bids by raising their bid paddles. The bids are called aloud and the decision made by the auctioneer is final.

During the dessert auction the group of individuals at a table may agree to bid on a certain dessert and if they have the highest bid they receive the dessert and can share it at that time, Mrs. Reppart said.

In the silent auction, each item has a sheet of paper on which the participants place their bids by writing their bid number down and the amount they wish to bid. Each time they must out bid the previous bidder by at least one dollar.

The last bidder with the highest dollar amount wins. Silent auction winners are announced at the end of the evening, Mrs. Reppart said.

The Spouses’ Club has also added mystery packages to the evening. A dollar amount will be listed on a wrapped package.

The value of the contents will be at least, if not more than, the purchase price. After the package is purchased, then the contents are revealed.

Items up for bid include a limousine wine-tasting excursion, an airplane ride up the Central Coast, a 32 inch RCA television, furniture, bottles of wine, a balloon ride over Napa Valley, entertainment and hotel packages, Reppart said.

Local companies, organizations, service members and their spouses, Air Force groups and squadrons, have been very generous and have donated all of the items auctioned, she added.

The VSC is a non-profit organization. All auction proceeds go into the Scholarship and Welfare Fund.

To make reservations call Danelle Hazelip at 734-2554 or Vicki McAlpin at 734-2502.

To apply for a scholarship call Kari Rosson at 734-1028.

To go along with the theme, Mrs. Reppart added that they are encouraging everyone to wear Western attire.

in to complete the work in just a day.

Since military members are often at one location for only two to three years, Mr. Wood was tasked to present the Posey’s with a variety of ways they could make their home their own, but easily return it to military standards when they leave.

“Military families often move into mundane housing, but they can make it theirs without a lot of money and without many skills,” Mr. Wood said. “If you don’t like what you do here, you can easily paint right over it and start over.”

“We’ve had the same furniture for 10 years,” Jennifer said.

“When we talked, Barry got a good idea of what I liked and I got the feeling he would give us something that would really reflect who we are.”

“I don’t do themes,” the designer said. What he and Jennifer came up with included mostly taupe-colored walls, one green wall, “for accent,” she said, and one white “museum wall,” Wood added.

The “museum wall” was planned to display three large works of art by the Posey children as a way of “making the room feel like theirs,” Jennifer said.

But what will Sergeant Posey think of his new home? For now he’ll have to appreciate it through digital photos his wife sends him through e-mail. She’ll get his true opinion when he comes home in August to see it in person but she’s confident in the decisions she made.

“I really learned a lot today about how to decorate and where to find things,” Jennifer said, “and I think he’s going to love it.”

COMMANDER ON CONSOLE

Think BLUE to win ORI battle

By COL. FRANK GALLEGOS
30th Space Wing Commander

Time flies when you're launching missiles and having fun.

Since the official notification of our upcoming inspection, this wing has been working non-stop in preparation for the ORI. We are out to prove to the AFSPC Inspector General that we are without a doubt the best at what we do.

The next 16 days are critical as we focus on the battle ahead ... make no mistake, we are going to war with the IG!

Here are a few more hints to get you through Apr. 9.

♦ Have pride in ownership: Take pride in your uniform, your workspace, and the job you perform on a daily basis knowing that every part of what you do counts. As you review your programs and go through your checklists, don't just check the boxes to get you through the inspection. This wing, this mission is yours. You are a small piece of something much larger than any individual ... the US Air Force.

- Think Blue
- Have Pride in Ownership
- Inspire Your Airmen
- No Repeat Write-Ups
- Know Pass/Fail Criteria
- Be professional and confident
- Lead by Example
- Understand the Process
- Enthusiasm

♦ Lead by example: Leading by example is the only way to lead, period (remember, we all are leaders!). For all of you supervisors, your Airmen see you doing the right thing, even when you think no one is looking. When your people or your bosses see you striving to be the best you can be, they will do likewise. Take advantage of the opportunity in the next few weeks to be a great example.

♦ Inspire your Airmen: This one's easy. If you are leading by example, then you will naturally inspire any Airmen that come in contact with you. As a leader in this wing we are only as strong as the weakest link. Don't let your teammates down, do the right thing and inspire everyone around you.

I'm proud of every one of you. At the end of the day, I want you all to follow the core values. If you all do this, we will win the war with the IG.

play.

Hometown: raised in the Air Force.

Time in Service: 22 years

Recent career history: Chief of Mission Systems Division, Directorate of Logistics and Communications at Air Force Space Command Headquarters, Peterson AFB, Colo.

Leadership philosophy: Surround yourself with great people and watch them go.

Short-term goals: Help the 30th Space Wing achieve Blue on the upcoming Operational Readiness Inspection.

Personal information: married to retired Army Lt. Col. Ken Briggs for 20 years.

Hobbies: Running, traveling and reading.

Who is your favorite leader in history and why? Abraham Lincoln. He was able to make the right decision for the country during the most critical time in our history – even when the majority did not support him.

What do you like best about the Air Force? Serving the greatest country on the planet alongside our world-class performers!

Our heritage and legacy are all around us

By LT. COL. SCOTT VAN NESS
30th Logistics Readiness Squadron Commander

Over the years, I have heard many times that the Air Force has no heritage. Major Command restructuring, the new Air Force symbol, the new Air Force recruiting slogan and even uniform changes have been the culprit of the complaints.

The folks I have heard this from usually point to our sister services and their long and storied past. They wish the Air Force had a history or legacy like the Army, Navy or Marines. I have to admit, our sister services have a long and illustrious history that everyone should admire and respect.

Even more impressive is the fact that the newest soldiers, sailors and Marines know the history of their service. I have a son who is serving in the United States Marine Corps. I remember when I got a chance to visit him right before he graduated from Marine Corps Basic Training and he told me about the history of the Marine Corps, what the markings on the uniform meant, the critical battles in Marine history and the names of past heroes. I was really impressed and frankly, envious.

The key to PFC Van Ness knowing the Marine Corps legacy was someone passed it on to him. Yes, I am sure he had a lot of help remembering those facts from understanding and sensitive Marine drill instructors, but still someone passed on that heritage.

This made me think about my time in the Air Force. As a second lieutenant aircraft maintenance officer, outstanding senior NCOs and civilians, who had many years in the Air Force, trained me on the ways of the Air Force. Those Airmen showed me the ropes and taught me about leadership. They were proud of their heritage and being "brown shoe." Thinking back to 1985, some of these folks had served for thirty years – wow, that takes them back to the mid-1950s! And who trained those folks?

World War II vets. Their mentors were Airmen who were in the Army Air Corps when the Air Force became a separate service. When you really look at it, that's only a couple of generations of Airmen. That's a lot less of a heritage and legacy to pass on then PFC Van Ness had to learn.

Since we are a younger service, we are going to have to work at this a little harder than the Army, Navy or Marines. A great place to start is our core values. The core values were not invented. They came from looking at our heritage and legacy. When the authors came up with the words we now hold so dear, they looked at our past.

The Air Force's greatest moments came when our Airmen demonstrated integrity first, service before self and excellence in all they did under extreme conditions.

Our heritage and legacy laid the groundwork for the words that make up the core values and our performance today carries those core values forward for the next generation.

My message for the senior junior Airmen at Vandenberg is pass on that heritage. It may seem like you haven't served that long, but to a junior Airman, that is a lifetime.

For our newer Airmen, take a look around at the grizzled and gray veterans in your organizations. Many served through the Gulf War and some of our more senior civilian Airmen served in the Vietnam era. Think of all that legacy and heritage right in your shop or office – take advantage of it!

Time on station: 1 year, 6 months

Role in Mission: Medical Technician, Family Practice. I check in patients, assist the doctors, and perform administrative clearances and Preventive Health Assessments.

How do you contribute to the wing mission? I contribute to the wing mission by helping keep our active duty force healthy, worldwide qualified, and ready to deploy.

What do you like best about the Air Force? I like the benefits the Air Force has and how it takes care of it's Airmen by having better dorms and dining facilities than the other services.

If you could change one thing about the Air Force what would it be? If I could change one thing about the Air Force, I would want all the bases to have full hospitals and for active duty to run the ambulance services on base.

How do you fulfill the Air Force core values? I fulfill the Air Force core values by always working hard, being honest, always willing to help out my coworkers, and always putting forth one hundred percent.

What's the most exciting experience you've had so far in the Air Force? The most exciting experience I have had in the Air Force was working at Wilford Hall Medical Center at Lackland AFB for my clinical training.

How would you improve life at Vandenberg? I would improve life at Vandenberg by modernizing and/or replacing the gas station on base.

Who is your role model and why? My role model is my mother because no matter what was going on in my life, she was always there for me.

Who is your favorite leader in history and why? My favorite leader in history was President Franklin D. Roosevelt because he led the country out of a huge depression and led the United States to a victory in World War II.

New quota system set-up for Team V honor guard

■Team Vandenberg’s Honor Guard has implemented a new quota system to alleviate the team’s manning shortages.

The new system increases the current size of the team by 100 percent by tasking members from the 30th Space Wing and 576th Flight Test Squadron.

“This way, additional details that we can’t do at our current manning numbers can get done,” said Tech. Sgt. Jeffrey Soong, Vandenberg honor guard manager. “We won’t be stretched so thin any longer.”

With a larger team, Vandenberg’s honor guard will be able to participate in more community events, such as parades and athletic events throughout the Central Coast.

“This gives us the opportunity to be a lot more visible in the community,” Sergeant Soong said.

While understanding that many individual wing units are already tasked with many deployments, the team decided the best method of tasking from the wing is to go straight to the groups.

“Tasking individual units for members would place too great of a burden on squadrons like the 30th Security Forces Squadron and the 30th Civil Engineer Squadron – two of the larger squadrons on Vandenberg, but also the most deployed,” said Capt. Kenneth Jackson, honor guard commander.

The only individual unit being tasked is the 576th, who has agreed to participate even though they are not part of the wing, Capt. Jackson added.

According to Sergeant Soong, once tasked, members will be assigned to one of six elements. Each element will be on standby for two weeks at a time. Once their two-week shift is complete, members will not be required to attend any practices or perform details for the next four weeks. Then the cycle begins all over again.

Members may still perform details and attend practice on a volunteer basis outside their assigned shift, but the honor guard will not call upon them unless it is absolutely necessary.

During their standby period, members will practice from 7-11 a.m. Tuesdays and Fridays. In addition, they are responsible for performing all details during this period. Tenant unit members, other than 576th Airmen, will be required to attend practice each Tuesday from 7-9 a.m. to maintain proficiency. These members will perform details based upon their availability.

According to Staff Sgt. Michele Higdon, a senior honor guard member, the current 20-member team eagerly awaits the influx of new Airmen to train.

“We’re preparing to help polish these new Airmen into the sharpest image the Air Force has to offer,” Sergeant Higdon said. “Please send us your best – we’ll make them better.”

Former AFSPC vice commander returns for 14th Air Force Ball

By AIRMAN 1ST CLASS BRYAN FRANKS
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

Air Force Space Command’s first vice commander returns to Vandenberg to speak during the 14th Air Force Ball at the Pacific Coast Club March 20.

Retired Lt. General Bruce Brown is the guest speaker for the event, which celebrates “Spanning the Generations” as a theme.

General Brown retired from the military in 1985 after 33 years of service. He began his career as an officer in the Air Force after graduating from the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. in 1952.

He entered the academy originally, so he could eventually serve on a submarine but had a change of heart after an airplane ride.

“I got the opportunity to fly in a wood and fabric bi-plane with an open cockpit,” General Brown said. “After that I never thought about submarines again.”

General Brown earned his pilot wings in 1953. He said that much has changed in the Air Force from the time he joined until now. Most notable is the technical expertise in the Air Force.

“The Air Force was in its infancy when I joined,” General Brown said. “In those days, you didn’t need a degree to earn your pilot wings. But the Air Force is what it is today because of those people.”

“There’s a great deal of professionalism in the Air Force today,” General Brown added. He also likes to shares his own philosophy on leadership.

“The only thing that leadership can do is create an environment where smart people can be successful,” General Brown said. “Everything else is a byproduct of that.”

He said that he enjoys times when he’s able to get out and meet the new generation of Airmen, but warns people about joining for the wrong reasons.

“If you join the military for any reason other than to protect this great country, you joined for the wrong reason,” he added.

The former AFSPC vice commander said that he is looking forward to visiting Vandenberg and giving his opinion on the most profound thing in defense since the National Security Act of 1947.

“You’ve got to come to the ball to find out what it is,” General Brown said.

Feb. 27 Minor Vehicle Accident – 10:42 a.m.

An Airman reported his vehicle had been involved in an accident at the Pacific Coast Club. The Airman stated a woman approached him and stated she had hit his vehicle while trying to parallel-park. The Airman’s vehicle had a 9-inch dent in the bumper. The woman’s vehicle sustained no damage.

Feb. 28 I’m stuck and can’t get out – 6:30 p.m.

An Airman reported his truck was stuck on a road near Wall Beach. Further investigation revealed the vehicle was stuck on a closed access road. A tow truck was called and the Airman was told not to drive on closed roads any longer.

Dumb, Dumber and Dumberer – 11:10 p.m.

Patrolmen reported stopping a vehicle for traveling more than 90 mph on Highway 1. An aroma of alcohol was emitting heavily from the vehicle. The driver identified as an Airman was administered a field sobriety test which he passed. Two of the passengers in the rear of the vehicle began to heckle the patrolmen and tell them they did not know what they were doing. Patrolmen determined that they were less than 21 years of age and under the influence of alcohol. Both individuals, identified as Airmen, were administered breath alcohol tests. The test confirmed both Airmen had alcohol in their system.

Feb. 29 Assistance Rendered – 12:57 a.m.

Security Forces were informed via 911 that there was an Airman at the Pacific Coast Club passed out and would not respond to anyone. An ambulance was contacted and transported the Airman to Lompoc Emergency room for further care.

Fire response – 10:09 a.m.

A patrolman reported a vehicle fire on Highway 1 adjacent to Mountain View South. Fire dispatch was contacted and sent fire crews to the scene. Investigation revealed the vehicle’s rear tire came off, which caused the vehicle to spark and ignite. None of the passengers were injured and the vehicle was later towed.

Major Vehicle Accident – 5:32 p.m.

Fire dispatch reported a major vehicle accident on Highway 1 adjacent to San Antonio Rd.

West. Patrolmen made contact with the non-base affiliated driver, who stated that she hit the guardrail, which caused her vehicle to flip into the air. California Highway Patrol Officers arrived and assumed control of the situation.

March 1 Stray Animal Impoundment – 1:58 p.m.

A patrolman reported capturing a stray canine while on Magnolia St. The dog was transported to the Lompoc Stray Animal Facility.

March 2 Traffic Stop – 9:58 a.m.

Patrolman reported stopping a vehicle on Lompoc Casmalia Rd. and Utah Ave. The vehicle was stopped because the driver was on the Driver Revocation list. The driver was cited and her vehicle was towed.

Roche requests
Army nomination
be withdrawn

■ WASHINGTON – Secretary of the Air Force Dr. James G. Roche is no longer in the running for the vacant secretary of the Army job. Secretary Roche requested March 10 that Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld withdraw the nomination. President George W. Bush nominated Secretary Roche for secretary of the Army on July 7 but the Senate Armed Services Committee had yet to report on the nomination to the full Senate for a vote.

“Given the range of issues before the Senate in a busy legislative year, I accept that my nomination is unlikely to be considered this year,” Secretary Roche said. “In the interest of the Department of Defense, I decided it was best that I withdraw from further consideration. “I intend to apply myself to the full range of important matters facing the Air Force, including the fine Airmen who are serving our country so proudly,” Secretary Roche said. In acknowledging Secretary Roche’s decision, Secretary Rumsfeld said, “Jim Roche has served ably as secretary of the Air Force and would have been a first-rate secretary of the Army. I look forward to continuing to work with him.” Two chiefs volunteer for honor guard duty ■ CANNON AFB, N.M., — Two chief master sergeants here have both decided to set a rare example by serving on Cannon’s honor guard. Chief Master Sergeants Mike Reeb, command chief master sergeant for the 27th Fighter Wing and Bertie Carrington, chief of quality assurance, 27th Logistics Group, spoke about why they are members of the elite group. “There are two reasons why I am in the Honor Guard,” said Chief Reeb, who joined in February. “First, it is very easy to sit in my office and tell people to support the Honor Guard. It’s another thing to lead by example, doing practices and details. Second, I can’t think of a better way to pay honor and tribute to my dad’s generation. “This is more than an airman-only venture. It’s fine for CGOs to do, too. It’s fine for everybody.” “I joined the Honor Guard to show young Air Force members that I not only support the Honor Guard, but I’m willing to put in the effort personally — being an example,” explained Chief Carrington, who joined the guard in May. “I love being a part of the Honor Guard. I enjoy posting the colors. I think it’s neat to carry on traditions.”

services become Web-only

■ RANDOLPH AFB, Texas – Starting Monday, Airmen will no longer have to stand in line to accomplish a personnel records review or several other common tasks. To make it easier for personnel customers, six different personnel services are now available only on the Web. Military personnel flight workers will point customers toward the Internet if they want to do any of the following: ♦ Update the Record of Emergency Data. ♦ Apply for a change to an assignment or change a report-not-later-than date. ♦ Apply for certain curtailments of date eligible for return from overseas.

♦ Accomplish a humanitarian or exceptional family member program application. ♦ Request a ‘proof of service’ letter, often needed for home loans. ♦ Make simple updates to common information like home address, home telephone number, religious preference, race, ethnic group, foreign language self-assessment, duty and personal e-mail addresses. For people using these services, questions can be answered 24 hours a day online or by a toll-free call to the Air Force Contact Center. The changes indicate the maturing of the virtual MPF concept and the realities of how busy Airmen are now with fighting the war on terror, said Maj. Gen. Thomas A. O’Riordan, Air Force Personnel Center commander here. “The primary goal of our virtual services is to save time for our Airmen and commanders in the field,” he said. “These transactions are simple and direct. We’ll achieve better accuracy and save the Airman a trip to the MPF.” Officials said they expect that more online services will mean less work on both sides of personnel flight help desks, and that they anticipate the average time spent waiting in line for other services will decrease for customers visiting personnel flights. The changes do not mean that Airmen will not have applications for programs reviewed. The level of approval is not changing; instead, approvals will be routed electronically to the correct approving officials. Airmen can access the vMPF through the Air Force Portal, at www.my.af.mil, by clicking on the “careers” tab. It is also available at www.afpc.randolph.af.mil. Airmen return from deep freeze By MAJ. THEODORE THEOPOLOS 445th Airlift Wing Public Affairs ■ The last C-141 Starlifter from the 445th Airlift Wing returned March 4 from Christchurch, New Zealand, after completing its role in Operation Deep Freeze. Operation Deep Freeze flights support the National Science Foundation, which operates scientific stations in Antarctica to explore the origins of the universe and mankind. The wing, along with its sister C-141 unit, the 452nd Air Mobility Wing at March ARB, Calif., carried

1.6 million pounds of cargo to and from McMurdo Station, Antarctica. The aircrews flew 3,446 passengers and logged more than 426 flying hours. The missions to the bottom of the world are flown in three phases. The initial preparation phase called Winfly, because it occurs during the winter in Antarctica, begins in August. The resupply phase takes place during the continent’s spring and summer from the end of September through mid-November. The redeployment phase takes place in February and ends before winter begins. This year C-141s flew 19 times to Antarctica for the resupply phase and 22 times for the redeployment phase. Besides aircrews, wing maintainers also were deployed to New Zealand to keep the 60s-vintage aircraft airworthy. Three C-141 missions to Antarctica had to be aborted because of weather conditions and one for maintenance. Mission to the ice is considered by many pilots to be the most difficult noncombat environment to fly in because of the weather. Average temperatures there range from minus 70 in the interior during the winter to 36 degrees along the coast in the summer, but they can change in a moments notice. Winds can gust up to 200 mph. This was the fourth year the 445th AW participated in Operation Deep Freeze. Jumper appearing in ‘Stargate: SG-1’ episode ■ SANANTONIO – Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. John Jumper will appear in the season-ending episode of “Stargate: SG-1” scheduled to air March 19 on the Sci-Fi Channel. General Jumper appears in scenes taking place in the Oval Office for the episode “The Lost City, Part 2.” The episode was taped Aug. 25 in Vancouver, British Columbia. As the only person involved with the filming who had personal experience in the actual Oval Office, General Jumper was able to provide some technical advice on protocol in the office, according to an entertainment liaison official with the Air Force office of public affairs in Los Angeles. # Team Vandenberg members redecorate Domestic Violence Shelter of Lompoc

By AIRMAN 1ST CLASS JUANIKA GLOVER
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

Imagine coming home to a brand new bedroom with new wall color, new comforters, decorations and even a new theme. It's enough to surprise anyone.

The Vandenberg Spouses Club got that opportunity to surprise someone when they put together a project to redecorate three rooms in the domestic violence shelter of Lompoc.

The shelter provides a 45-day program for women and their children who are victims of domestic violence.

The residents of the shelter originally slept in rooms that had no wall coloring or any decor at all, said Kathryn Aragon VSC member.

After a year of collecting donations, paint supplies, toiletries and decorations for the rooms, VSC members were ready to complete the rooms in just one day, said Mrs. Aragon. Ace Hardware donated five gallons of paint, the base thrift shop donated comforters, and members of the 30th Space

Communications Squadron turned out to help.

"The idea came about when one of our club members told us she kept the toiletries from every hotel she'd been to and donated them to the shelter," Mrs. Aragon said. "After that we all thought it would be a great idea to help out on an even bigger level."

Master Sgt. Brian O'Connor, 30th SCS, along with other volunteers from his squadron and the VSC restored three rooms in all. Once finished, each room had a seperate theme which included a dragonfly room, an ocean room and a garden room.

Tech. Sgt. Mark Bauer, 30th Space Communications Squadron, applies paint to a room in the Domestic Violence Shelter of Lompoc. The shelter, which provides a safe haven for women an children who are victims of domestic violence was in much need of a makeover. A team of volunteers from Vandenberg worked to help restore the shelter February 21.

Mrs. Aragon said they decided to take on the project to make the shelter residents a place that felt like a home.

"We picked a warm yellow color to brighten things up," Mrs. Aragon said. "Each room had a different theme. An ocean room, a dragonfly room and a garden room."

Because of limited space, each of the bedrooms has at least three beds in it. The VSC members purchased new bed linens and used donated comforters to give the beds a homier look, Mrs. Aragon said.

"This was a really big project we took on, because right now there aren't as many members in the club," she said. "But we saw the plain white walls and knew the place needed some brightening up."

The VSC members also added a special touch to the project by placing a teddy bear on each child's bed, Mrs. Aragon said.

The themes of the rooms also took careful planning.

Megan Thompson, another VSC member, said she has a flair for decorating and wanted to help out.

We wanted to make each room different because that's how a real home is, she said. We also wanted to make the rooms look a little friendlier.

The VSC members decided together on the room color and themes, Mrs.

Thompson said. Then throughout the year, she collected items and planned how each room would look.

Mrs. Thompson said they got an opportunity to meet the residents as they were preparing to leave and they seemed quite happy when they found out what VSC was doing.

Although the VSC members did not get to see the reactions on their faces when they came home, she said she's sure they were quite surprised.

"This project was fun and nerve wracking because we wanted it to all come together," she said. "I was really worried that we would not be able to finish it in one day but we did and the rooms look great!"

Mrs. Thompson said although the shelter residents are in a difficult situation, they should still be able to feel like they're coming to a place they can call home.

She also said she hoped this wouldn't be their final project at the shelter.

"I hope that we will be able to do the backyard at some point," she said.

"It would be really nice to sand down the children's play set and add a few more touches for the adults too."

"Without the help of everyone who came together to make this project work, we couldn't have done it," Mrs. Thompson added. "It's really nice to see people working together for a good cause."

National league edges past determined American league 55-48

By Senior Airman Brian Hill
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

It was a fast-paced, yet relaxed atmosphere that found Vandenberg’s top intramural basketball players competing in this year’s all star game. Although the American League’s Jimmy Rivera led all scorers with 14 points, the rebounding and quick offensive turnover of the National League ultimately sealed the deal in this 55-48 shootout.

National League point guard Sean Morgan kept the ball moving around the court, and 6’8” forward Benjamin Roy towered over everyone under the basket picking up crucial offensive rebounds.

“It was fun playing with all of those guys instead of against them,” Roy said.

Quick scoring and back and forth play grabbed the attention of spectators and passers by. Roy’s dunk mid-way through the second half brought a little thunder to the normally placid intramural crowds, and seemed to put the lid on the come from behind American League attack.

However, the final five minutes were the highlight with a tight score and a determination from both sides.

“We always knew we were a stronger team,” said National League coach Ricky Matthias. “We had a lot of fun and we pulled out the win.”

Two players are selected to represent each team at the all star game. And although the game is meaningless as league standings are concerned, many of the players consider it exciting to play with the league’s elite.

“I always enjoy a good game of basketball and I thought we held up pretty well, considering we only had seven players,” said American League coach Darrel Parkin. “Our league has dropped two teams, so it was hard to get a full squad. Overall I think the guys enjoyed playing regardless of the outcome.”

Five friends cross finish line

By Senior Airman Brian Hill
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

Five Cabrillo High School seniors recently set their sights on one goal for their final school project before graduation in spring. Months of preparation led to a successful finale Sunday as they completed the Los Angeles Marathon.

As long-time friends and cross-country team members, Henriette Potts, Meghann Howard, Katie Damico, Cassandra Orozco and Jennifer Bialass decided to take on the challenge of running a marathon (26.2 miles) after cross-country season ended.

“It started out as a joke,” said Katie Damico – whose father Maj. Edward Damico works in the 30th Space Wing Judge Advocate office. “Meghann and I were running from my house to the gym and we were going over what we should do for our senior project.

“We’d been running so much that Meghann suggested we just run for our project – we could just run a marathon,” Katie added with a laugh.

The five friends – all dependents of either active duty or retired military – began their project by writing on sports-related topics.

Henriette wrote on sports nutrition and found that sports drinks replenish the body of electrolytes. Other topics they covered include the history of the marathon, injuries, running shoes and the history of women in sports.

“The first woman to run the Boston Marathon wasn’t even signed up, but got a number and ran,” Katie said. “People tried to remove her from the race. Now here we are, five girls running in the L.A. Marathon.”

Through three-months of training, as they learned about long-distance running, their diets changed a bit as well.

“I find I’m eating more,” Katie added. “So that worked out nicely.”

Being the first marathon for all of them, they decided their goal was not so much to finish in any certain time, but finish together.

To increase their endurance from a 3.1-mile cross country race, to a 26.2-mile trek, the girls devised a mileage chart to show how far they should be by certain times. But as their days filled with college applications and homework, the chart fell by the wayside and they concentrated on motivating each other on long weekend runs.

Their first long run was 15 miles and Henriette said it felt really good afterwards. They eventually reached 20 miles together, and all the time spent running all over Lompoc has brought them even closer than they were.

“There’s definitely no uncomfortable silences between us,” Katie said. “It’s brought us together and made us closer. I wouldn’t be able to run 20 miles alone.”

There efforts have paid off as they all finished within about 45 minutes of each other – between about five hours, 30 minutes and

Nojoqui Falls provide haven of tranquility for visitors

By STAFF SGT. REBECCA DANÉT
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

Nestled in a shaded valley off Highway 101, Nojoqui Falls provides a haven of tranquility for people juggling an often-hectic weekend schedule.

The recent rains have filled out the falls from their usual trickle and the icy-cold water makes a refreshing backdrop for a picnic with family or friends.

The trail to the falls begins at the back of Nojoqui Park, a haven in itself complete with playgrounds, ball fields, group picnic areas, hiking trails and restrooms.

Riparian willows and California oak trees line a trickling crystal-clear creek leading from the falls.

“I’m going to catch some snakes,” said my daughter, 7-year-old Kaitie Danét, as she went racing up the trail with her friend Kendra Salas, 7, in tow.

Saturday was my second visit to Nojoqui Falls and the rains of the past few weeks only appeared to have added to the lush surroundings.

Greg was a first-time visitor and seemed mildly disappointed by signs along the trail forbidding climbing off into the wilderness.

“There has to be a way to the top,” he said when we reached the sheer rock face of the falls at the end of our 15-minute hike.

There’s not.

According to an information board at its base, the falls are a part of Nojoqui Creek where it cascades over the Santa Ynez Mountains. Behind the upper half of the flow, sandstone forms a relatively uniform vertical wall of massive gray rock. At its base, the sandstone is intermingled with shale.

We spent several minutes at the pool of water surrounding the base of the falls while Kaitie and Kendra took off their shoes and rolled up their jeans for a dip. The instant their lily-white toes hit the water, the girls shrank back crying out, “It’s cold, it’s cold, it’s cold!”

Two minutes later their shoes were back on and the girls had settled into tossing rocks down the creek instead.

Kendra Salas (left), 7, and Kaitie Danet, 7, stop for a rest during their visit to the falls.

Not long later, our stomachs sent us back down the trail looking for lunch.

Several families had thought ahead and brought their meals with them but we decided to head toward Solvang instead.

A quick right out the gates of the park took us past rolling hills, lush green golf courses and straight into the heart of the quaint Danish village to our east.

By the time we arrived, Kaitie and Kendra were fast asleep.

Directions

Highway 246 toward Buellton provides the quickest route to Nojoqui Park. Taking the 101 south from Buellton, there’s a turnoff about halfway between there and the Lompoc/Vandenberg exit. A winding section of Alisal Road leads to the tree-lined recreational area.
